PASSING THRONG.

One Continuous Scene of Beauty Through State of West Virginia.

THE MOUNTAINS AND VALLEYS

Engage the Eye-Description of the Streams and Valleys-Scenes of the Historic Points of the War-Wonderful Timber and Coal Country.

New York Tribune: "I took a recen business trip through West Virginia." said A. L. Curtain, of Philadelphia, at the Gilsey House, "and never have I seen in the east scenery that surpassed that which I viewed there. Leaving Cumberland we went through to Elkins, the western terminus of the railroad, and it was a continuous scene of beauty. As I had come through Washington I had followed the Potomac on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad from the capital to Cumberland, and from Cumberland the road ran along the Potomac to its source. From the mighty river that interposed its broad bosom between the North and South I had seen it dwindle little by little to the porportions of a creek, then to the mountain brook, finally to disappear entirely as I crossed the divide of the Allegheny mountains. Soon the water ran the other way, and I knew that whereas a moment before I had been gazing on waters that found their eg-ress in the Atlantic ocean through Chesapeake Bay, now I was gazing on the brawling brook that formed the headwaters of the beautiful Monongahela river. The Blackwater insensibly becomes the Morongahela, that river in time melting into the Ohlo, which rushes on to its destination and is obrushes on to its destination, and is absorbed and disappears in the dark and turbid waters of the mighty Mississippi, and is borne onward to the Gulf of Mexico. At a point in the divide we had passed two tiny streams, one of which passed through and irrigated many of the stutes of the Atlantic seaboard. This tree-life translation was a superior of the stutes of the Atlantic seaboard. This brooklet, running toward the east, while a few feet beyond, ru ning toward the setting sun, was its tiny, laughing sister, who, in journey-ing to her destination to the Gulf would pass through the rich Ohlo river val-ley, and touch the southern limits of the republic. I know of nothing more impressive than a divide. As we travelled westward the Blackwater rapidly swelled from a babbling brook to the whirling, swirling, brawling, leaping mass of water that hirtles so mady down the western slope of the Alleghe-nics, and is endeared to the memory of all trout fishermen.

"Endeared no longer, alas! as the Einterred no longer, ans: as the ining of coal along its course has so deened its waters as to render them to longer habitable for that game and gallant fish. From Cumberland we passed through Piedmont and that surrounding country, made so famous by the Civil war. Rapidly we ascended until we reached the divide, a few miles this side of Thomas. Then we follow-ed the banks of the Blackwater until we passed its famous falls, and the stream dropped far below us, while wo followed on and up on the mountains' shoulder, our right windows all but touching the blasted rocks of the mountain side, our left hanging over so steep a hill that it was almost a pre-cipice. Far below us, through the tree trunks, we could catch occasional onerated Boyle.

and foaming onward. Across the val-ley were the bleak but beautiful Alle-ghenies, crowned with snow, their line occasionally broken by a gorge, where some stream pushed its way through to join and swell the volume of noisy companions so far below. Back of the crest of mountains that bound and bor der the junction of the main Black water with a smaller branch, is a pla teau known in that part of the country over as the Land of Canaan. My com-panion, wishing to locate it exactly, in-quired if the Land of Canaan lay not behind a distant ridge. "No, the Land of Caneen (with an accent on the neen) is behind the mountain on the right, was the correction in pronunciation he received. The country is valueless, except for timber and coal, as it is too barren for farming. It is a wonderful game country, abounding in deer, bear, wild turkey, pheasants, partridges and the like. At one station two fresh killed doe were awaiting shipment. At an other a mountaineer offered for some wild turkey, and so it was along the line. Back among the hills, where coal mines as yet do not contaminate trout are still to be found in the stream and if you are a lover of hunting and fishing the natural game preserves there will amply reward you for a trip to this part of West Virginia. lover of scenery and Nature will find more than a reward in the panoramic succession of wonderful views that will everywhere meet and greet the eye.

SKILLFUL MANIPULATION TO RAISE OPENING PRICES.

bonds steady. Railroad bonds irregular,
The surface indications in to-day's stock market all go to show that stocks swee in very active course of transfer from the hands of strong to those of weak holders. The culmination of a riss invariably presents this very condition, but it is a condition also which occurs at intervals in every long sustained upward movement. The conservative element after seeing a certain profit assured, makes it a habit to sell and take a profit, without regard to the prospect of further advance. The weight of influence then passes to the bear party and the upward course is not renewed until they have exhausted their best efforts to push the reaction to a culmination. What was evident to day was that powerful, skillful manipulation was at work to make the opening prices as high as possible to meet the day was that powerful, skillful manipulation was at work to make the opening prices as high as possible to meet the flood of outside buying orders which was certain to come into the market after last week's events. From the very first enormous realizing was in evidence. Later in the day, various attempts were made to hold up the market by marking up the prices of various individual stocks. As the fact became more and more evident that the sustaining force of these individual movements was taken advantage of to continue the unloading of heavy lines of long stock, the professional element on the exchange turned to the bear side. exchange turned to the bear side, by were successful in forcing a sharp They were successful in forcing a sharp reaction, much reducing the gains that had been largest and completely wiping out a large number of those that had only reached moderate proportions. Manipulation developed at the close again to rally the market by bidding up Northern Pacific to 78½, a record price. The shorts were buying to cover elsewhere, so that the closing was generally steady with the further course of the market very unsettled and doubtful-Even with the net changes in prices to-day very small, the profits on last week; advances are on an enormous scale. advances are on an enormous scale. per cent. Silver certificates $6785c, Bar silver $6c. Mexican dollars $546c. Government bonds irregular. State bonds steady. Railroad bonds irregular. The surface indications in to-day's stock market all go to show that stocks were in very active course of transfer sources. The normal course of sub-treasury operations also promised some relief this week. The outburst of bull-ish enthusiasm was a certain consequence. The fact seems to be that strong banking interests provided themselves long since with ample resources to take advantage of the reactionary tendency of stocks incident to the December period to absorb very heavy amounts of the various railroad stocks which have figured most largely in the stock market for many days past. 'So large and effective was this buying as to overcome the natural reactionary tendency in the market and to prompt the speculative public to rush to secure atocks seeing that the expected reaction was not likely to occur before January. 'Higher prices for stocks in January have been the universal expectation on the stock exchange and speculators have only awaited an opportunity to buy stocks and to hold them safely in anticipation of the January rise. Last week's bank statement was accepted as the assurance that money resources would be ample to hold stocks over the January lart period. Outside of the opening seneral advance ranging up to between 1 and 2 points, the most striking later advances were in the New York public utilities led by Brooklyn Rapid Transit and Metropolitan; the Erie stocks and a number of the minor Vanderbilts. Amalgamated Copper also developed notable strength, railying 4 points. The excited bull market was a striking contrast to the panle of a year ago, when the contraction of the money quence. Anxious shorts forced the price of December up to 33%c in their efforts to cover and it closed at 39%c, an advance of 2%c. May also advanced %c. Wheat weakened by its own governing influences was steadled by corn and closed unchanged. Oats closed unchanged to 10c lower.

Corn was strong and higher from the start. The unsettled weather condi-tions rendering still more uncertain ap-increased contracts and the total ab-Increased contracts and the total absense of contract corn in to-day's arrivals of 547 cars, revived anxiety among shorts, who became active bidders for both December and May as the session progressed. Chief interest centered in the December option. This was bid up very rapidly by one prominent broker, who is credited with being heavily short, the price reaching 39% before the reaction came. Even at that figure there was little offered. The debefore the reaction came. Even at that figure there was little offered. The decrease in the visible supply of 624,000 bushels helped the bull situation. May, in the meantime also showed considerable strength, though having periods of comparative depression. December ranged from 37%c to 38%c, and closed 2%c higher at 38%c, closing %c higher at 38%c, closing %c higher at 36%c.

Metals.

Metals.

NEW YORK—The week starts with conditions in metals on the whole in buyers favor. Advices from London reported a weak and lower market for tin, closing at £115,15c. The local situation was also depressed, owing to heavy shipments from the Straits and in sympathy with the weakness abroad. The close was very weak at $26.25c. The prevailing low rates falled to stimulate demand, however, and trading was low. Copper dull, but about steady with business of a hand to mouth character at $17.00 for Lake Superior and 16% for casting copper and electrolytic. Copair of for Lake Superior and 16%c for casting copper and electrolytic. Copper in London closed at £71.138 9d. Lead ruled dull and nominally unchanged both here and abroad, closing at $4874 and £16 128 6d respectively. Speiter was also dull at $4 1504 20, in the absence of speculation. Domestic from markets remain dull and unchanged despite a further loss abroad, where Grasmy closed at £54 december 67 as spite a further loss abroad, where Glassow closed at 60s 4d and Middleaboro 52s 9d. Pig fron warrunts $5 50@10 50; northern foundry $15 00@16 50; southern foundry $14 50@15 75, and soft southern $13 00@16 75.

Dry Goods. Dry Goods.

NEW YORK—There was a moderate attendance of buyers to-day in the dry goods market and spot business was quiet in all departments. No changes in prices of brown bleached or coarse colored cottons. Print cloths quiet but steady. Prints in average demand at provious prices. Glighams firm, but quiet. Orders for woolen goods keep up last week's improvement and tone occaek's improvement and tone occ sionally firmer.
